Morsel for Meditation

There is, then, something which should at all times be done. There is something which in no temporal sense shall have its time. Alas, and when this is not done, when it is omitted, or when just the opposite is done, then once again, there is something...which should at all times be done. There is something which in no temporal sense shall have its time. There must be repentance and remorse. One dare not say of repentance and remorse that it has its time; that there is a time to be carefree and a time to be prostrated in repentance. Such talk would be: to the anxious urgency of repentance--unpardonably slow; to the grieving after God--sacrilege; to what should be done this very day, in this instant, in this moment of danger--senseless delay. For there is indeed danger. There is danger that is called delusion. It is unable to check itself. It goes on and on: then it is called perdition. But there is a concerned guide[.] That guide is remorse...For when the sick man who is wasting away from consumption believes himself to be in the best of health, his disease is at the most terrible point.

Stewardship Today

As Stewardship chairman, I'd like to remind everyone that this year's theme is, "Giving for Jesus, Living for Jesus." In His Sermon on the Mount, Jesus said, "Give, and it will be given to you. A good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, will be put into your lap; for the measure you give will be the measure you give back." (Luke 6:38) What a joyful message! Never lose sight of what a generous, loving God we worship.
